Baltimore, Maryland, 21250

The Department of Geography and Environmental Systems at the University of Maryland Baltimore County (UMBC) invites applications from scholars in human geography or related disciplines pursuing a research agenda in environmental health, social justice, and/or urban political economy. While we welcome candidates from a broad range of areas of specialization, we especially encourage candidates whose scholarly work critically engages with topics such as inequalities in health and well-being; race, gender, and other dimensions of identity and difference; migration and mobility; social movements and urban change; or environmental justice. At minimum, candidates will hold a PhD at the time of appointment and demonstrate research productivity and experience teaching courses in human geography or related areas. This is a tenure-track position at the Assistant Professor rank and will begin in August 2019.

UMBC is proud to rank in the top 15% of national universities in the diversity of its student body and to emphasize an inclusive workplace for faculty and staff. We seek to attract an equally diverse pool for this position and encourage applications from women, under-represented group members, veterans, and individuals with disabilities. UMBC is listed in the most recent Carnegie ranking as a Research University-High Research Activity.

To read a more detailed description of the position and to apply, please visit apply.interfolio.com/52372. Applications should include: a cover letter with description of qualifications and fit with the department and university; a statement of commitment to inclusion and diversity in research, teaching, and service; a statement of teaching; a statement of research; up to three reprints of research publications; Curriculum vitae; and three letters of recommendation. Questions can be directed to Dr. Dawn Biehler at HGsearch@umbc.edu. Formal review of applications will begin on October 7, 2018 and will continue until the position is filled. UMBC is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer.
